Ron Balazs retired in 2004 after an outstanding 35-year career as a teacher, coach and athletic director in the Dade County Public Schools in Miami, Florida. His career included 14 years as a wrestling and football coach and 21 years as an athletic director. Since his retirement as an active athletic director, Balazs has served as executive director of the Florida Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association (FIAAA).

After graduating from Ohio State University and teaching biology at the high school level for three years, Balazs moved to Florida and joined the staff at Coral Park Senior High School in Miami as a teacher and wrestling coach. He coached wrestling for seven years and then was head football coach for seven years before becoming the school's athletic director in 1983.

Balazs was athletic director at Coral Park High School for 17 years before concluding his career as athletic director at Miami Felix Varela Senior High School from 2000 to 2004.

During his administrative career in the Dade County Public Schools, Balazs was a member of the Greater Miami Athletic Conference Executive Committee and served on committees that addressed recruiting, eligibility, improving test scores, guidelines for fundraising, budget cuts and implementing a course for coaching certification.

Throughout his career, Balazs was heavily involved with the FIAAA, the Florida High School Athletic Association (FHSAA) and the NIAAA.

Before beginning his service as FIAAA executive director in 2005, Balazs was the organization's district director, president-elect, president, past president and conference chair. Maurice “Bud” Campbell, CAA
Bountiful, Utah

The late Maurice “Bud” Campbell retired in 1998 after an outstanding 38-year career in the Murray (Utah) Public Schools, including 28 years as athletic director at Murray High School. Prior to entering athletic administration, Campbell coached football, basketball and baseball and was selected Baseball Coach of the Year in 1967, 1968 and 1971.

In addition to the baseball coach-of-the-year honors, Campbell coached the Utah South All-Star Team and had a tremendous impact on many student-athletes during his days as a football, basketball and baseball coach. Campbell placed great emphasis on citizenship and sportsmanship throughout his coaching and administrative career.

Campbell was active in providing athletic opportunities to the community and organized numerous camps and clinics to reach kids. He was the director and host of the Utah Junior Jazz Clinic for six years, and many of the camps and clinics helped support the Murray athletic budget.

Campbell also was involved in numerous civic activities, including the Boy Scouts of America (B.S.A.), where he has served as a scoutmaster for 34 years. He has served on the B.S.A. Council Executive Board and Council Leadership Board. He received the Silver Beaver Award and the district Award of Merit.

At the state level, Campbell was a huge contributor to the Utah Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association (UIAAA), and his service to the state athletic administrators association did not end with his retirement in 1998, continuing until his death earlier this year.

A member of the UIAAA Athletic Directors Executive Board for 29 years, Campbell organized the UIAAA Retired Athletic Directors Association in 1999. As a retired athletic director, Campbell served on the UIAAA Board of Directors from 2007 to 2010, including a term as president in 2007-08 and past president in 2008-09.

Campbell's term as president was one of the most successful in the organization's history. He helped to initiate the first strategic plan and a new athletic directors' training program that now trains an average of 30 to 40 athletic directors annually. During Campbell's term as president, membership in the association and attendance at the annual conference reached all-time high marks, and the spring conference was expanded to a four-day event.

Campbell also devoted many hours of service to the Utah High School Activities Association (UHSAA) as director of numerous state tournaments, including hosting the UHSAA State 4A Girls Basketball Championship 12 times and the UHSAA State 3A Wrestling Championships three times.

Nationally, Campbell was a member of the NIAAA Membership and Services Committee for three years, the NIAAA Hall of Fame Committee for seven years and the NIAAA Delegate Assembly for seven years. He completed 16 Leadership Training Courses and attended 13 National Athletic Directors Conferences.

Frank Kovaleski, CAA
Anderson, Indiana

Frank Kovaleski retired in 2005 after 16 years with the NFHS and NIAAA. A longtime Indiana high school athletic director and coach before joining the NFHS staff, Kovaleski expanded professional development opportunities for high school athletic directors during his tenure as national director of the NIAAA.

Most significant among those opportunities was the creation of the NIAAA Leadership Training Program (now Leadership Training Institute) in 1996 and expansion of the NIAAA Certification Program in 1999. The Leadership Training Institute has expanded to a current offering of 40 courses, and more than 35,000 courses have been completed by athletic directors at state, regional and national conferences since the program's inception 19 years ago. In 1999, two additional levels – the Registered Athletic Administrator (RAA) and Certified Master Athletic Administrator (CMAA) – were added to the certification program.

In 2003, through Kovaleski's efforts, the NIAAA formed an arrangement with Ohio University to offer a master's degree in athletic administration through online courses. He also was responsible for starting the NIAAA Endowment in 1994.

Kovaleski also played a significant role in the success of the National Athletic Directors Conference, which is held each December and annually attracts 1,500 to 2,000 high school athletic directors.

Prior to devoting full-time duties to the NIAAA and the national conference in 2002, Kovaleski made significant contributions to the NFHS as the organization's meeting planner and as rules editor in track and field. He was instrumental in enacting rules changes that improved safety in pole vault and discus events in high school track and field.

Kovaleski brought a rich background in athletic administration to the NFHS in 1989, having served as a high school athletic director since 1965 in three different Indiana high schools. He began his career at Union City (Indiana) High School, followed by a five-year stint at Triton High School in Bourbon, Indiana. Kovaleski was athletic director at New Castle (Indiana) High School for 15 years and at Richmond (Indiana) High School for four years. During his years at the high school level, Kovaleski also coached track, football and tennis.

A graduate of Bicknell (Indiana) High School, Kovaleski earned his bachelor's degree in 1963 from Indiana State University and his master's in 1969 from St. Francis College in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Kovaleski had been involved with the NIAAA for a number of years prior to joining the NFHS staff. He served terms on the NFHS/NIAAA Athletic Directors Advisory Committee, the NIAAA Resolutions Committee and the NIAAA Professional Development Committee. At the state level, he was president of the Indiana Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association in 1979-80. He also was a part of the group that developed content for the first edition of "A Guide for College-Bound Student-Athletes and Their Parents."

Among his honors, Kovaleski was Indiana high school athletic director of the year in 1981, and he received the NFHS Citation in 1987, the NIAAA Distinguished Service Award in 2008 and the NIAAA Award of Merit in 2009. When he retired in 2005, the NIAAA created the Frank Kovaleski Professional Development Award, which is presented annually to an athletic director. In 2007, he was inducted into the National Council of Secondary Schools Athletic Directors Hall of Fame. In addition, Kovaleski was selected as team manager for the U.S. pre-Olympic basketball team that played in the Soviet Union in 1978.

Since his retirement, Kovaleski has been active in church work. He currently is a member of the Executive Committee of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Robert Whitehouse
Papillion, Nebraska

While his time as a high school athletic administrator was limited to 12 years, Bob Whitehouse had a tremendous impact on the profession at the state level in Nebraska and nationally with the NIAAA.

Whitehouse was one of the early leaders in high school athletic administration in Nebraska while serving as assistant principal/director of athletics at Omaha South High School from 1971 to 1983. During that time, Whitehouse was president of the Nebraska State Coaches Association and the Nebraska Athletic Directors Association (now the Nebraska Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association).

Thanks to his leadership at the state level, Whitehouse was selected by Tom Frederick, NFHS associate director in charge of athletic directors programs, to be one of the eight members of the original NIAAA Constitution Committee. Whitehouse attended the historic meeting in February 1977 in Elgin, Illinois, and became one of the founding fathers of the NIAAA.

Whitehouse attended the National Athletic Directors Conferences annually from 1973 to 1982 and in 1990 received the NIAAA Special Commendation for Distinguished Service to Interscholastic Athletics. He also was honored at the state level in 1982 when he was selected Nebraska Athletic Director of the Year.

During his time in athletic administration and continuing today, Whitehouse assisted the Nebraska School Activities Association as assistant director of the Nebraska State Track and Field Championships.

In 1983, Whitehouse moved into school administration as principal of Bryan Junior High School in Omaha for four years and then concluded his active career in education as principal of Bryan Senior High School in Omaha from 1987 to 2000. For the past 15 years, Whitehouse has continued to serve in education in short-term or interim capacities, including adjunct professor at the University of Nebraska, Omaha; educational consultant for the Omaha Public Schools; interim principal for the Omaha Public Schools Career Center; coordinator of the Nebraska Educational Leadership Institute; co-coordinator of Middle School Learning Center Initiative for the Omaha Public Schools; and co-coordinator of Collective for Youth for the Omaha Public Schools.

Whitehouse has been involved with the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) and was president of the Omaha School Administrators Association. He currently serves on the Nebraska High School Sports Hall of Fame Board of Directors and is a former chair of the board of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

In addition to aforementioned awards, Whitehouse was inducted into the Omaha Public Schools Athletic Hall of Fame in 2012 and the Omaha Bryan High School Track Invitational was named in his honor in 2014. He was named Omaha Public Schools Outstanding Principal of the Year in 1997 and received Distinguished Service Awards from the Nebraska Association of Secondary School Principals in 1997 and the Nebraska Council of School Administrators in 2001.
